

Transcript 3.6: The alarm has been sounded

It's night time. The scene opens to fast-paced handy cam shots. The team is quickly grabbing the equipment. They speak quickly to each other in strained whispers. The forest is full of movement, torches sweep the area and the sound of an alarm can be heard.

JON:

OK, we knew this might happen. Have you got everything? I'll contact base camp and arrange an evacuation by helicopter, all right?

We'll rendezvous with them by the river; there was a rope bridge there to a clearing. If we can get there, we can get out!

ANNA:

Look at the maps! They're soaking. We can't use these!

ANDY:

What happened... how can we...?

The shouts of the guards and the barking of dogs gets closer. The team runs.

ANNA:

(Urgent) We've got to go... NOW! RUN!

Shaky handy cam footage of the environmentalists running through the forest. The sound of guard dogs barking.

JON:

(Urgent, into Walkie-Talkie) OK, Luke, get the base camp team to the rendezvous and arrange a chopper. We're being pursued, don't know by how many, but they've got guns.

ANDY:

And dogs!

JON:

(Into walkie talkie) Yeah, thanks, Andy... and dogs. We don't know how long we'll be. Just get the team to the rendezvous point and wait for us.

Fade to black.
